With each and every apartment boasting its own personality and quirks, The Gothic is so much more than just a place to live - it's a lifestyle.

THE HISTORY OF

The Gothic

The Gothic spans three Grade II Listed and heritage buildings in the heart of one of Birmingham's most industrious neighbourhoods. Collectively, these three buildings can be traced back to the early 1830s, carrying a myriad of different identities along the way.

Goode's House is one of three buildings that have been thoughtfully restored in The Gothic. This historic building was first brought to life in the 1830s, when John Goode opened the space to manufacture gold chains.

After 80 years of consistent growth, Goode's House was no longer big enough for the thriving business. With Great Hampton Street's strong industrious roots, the team didn't need to look far for a new location.

The Quality Works - a bigger factory space next door to Goode's House - soon became one of the most well-known gold-chain manufacturers in the Jewellery Quarter. With high ceilings, striking windows and spacious rooms as a standard, The Quality Works has now been transformed into contemporary living spaces, perfect for the modern resident.

While The Gothic comprises three historic buildings, the Grade II Listed building is arguably the most iconic. From The Gothic to The Gothic Stores and The Gothic Inn, this historic building carried many identities up until the early 2000s, but always remained a cornerstone in the local community and, in the Jewellery Quarter's rich history.

The Gothic will now contribute to Birmingham's exciting future by redefining the standards of city living, and will continue to pay homage to the building's rich heritage. Through thoughtful restorations of The Gothic's iconic oriel window and characterful turret, this development will serve as a polite reminder of the building's colourful history.

THE FUTURE OF Great Hampton Street

Great Hampton Street is in the midst of its biggest transformation to date. The accessibility of the Jewellery Quarter has long made it a destination for living and working, and the redevelopment of Great Hampton Street will only draw more businesses, residents and visitors to this thriving neighbourhood.

The Gothic sits amongst some of the most exciting regeneration projects in Birmingham, and residents will directly benefit from the wealth of new amenities that are set to arrive in the coming years. With commercial units across The Gothic, The Bank (Cordia Blackswan HQ) and The Lamp Works, this regeneration scheme will expand Birmingham's independent presence at its core.

With colourful workspaces that signify the creativity of the Jewellery Quarter, Great Hampton Street will be an extension of the city's expansive business district, putting new companies on the map and generating more opportunities for local residents.
